

Harpeth Conservancy helps keep park healthy

11 PHOTOS

4:37 p.m. CST Feb. 1, 2021

Share

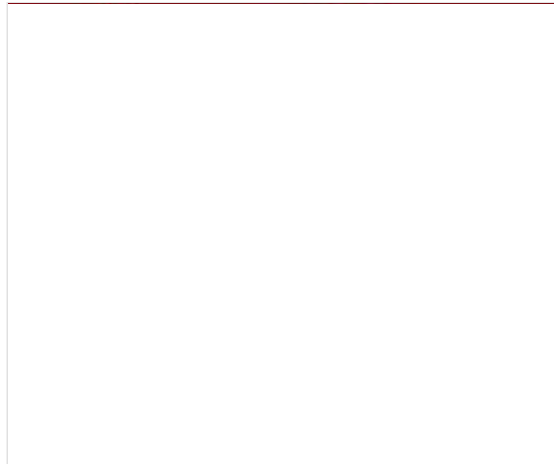

Amy Balderrama applies glyphosate to the roots of the privet plants.

Share

Harpeth Conservancy's Jane Polansky shares information with volunteers at Sunday's event.
TONY CENTONZE / FOR THE USA TODAY NETWORK - TENNESSEE

Advertisement

Harpeth Conservancy members gathered for an MLK Day of Service, clearing invasive plants at Harpeth River State Park.

TONY CENTONZE / FOR THE USA TODAY NETWORK - TENNESSEE

Harpeth Conservancy members gathered for an MLK Day of Service, clearing invasive plants at Harpeth River State Park.

TONY CENTONZE / FOR THE USA TODAY NETWORK - TENNESSEE

Harpeth Conservancy members gathered for an MLK Day of Service, clearing invasive plants at Harpeth River State Park.

TONY CENTONZE / FOR THE USA TODAY NETWORK - TENNESSEE

Harpeth Conservancy members gathered for an MLK Day of Service, clearing invasive plants at Harpeth River State Park.

TONY CENTONZE / FOR THE USA TODAY NETWORK - TENNESSEE

Harpeth Conservancy members gathered for an MLK Day of Service, clearing invasive plants at Harpeth River State Park.

TONY CENTONZE / FOR THE USA TODAY NETWORK - TENNESSEE